Faire danser le patrimoine, today and tomorrow

First Canadian choreographer to ensure his artistic succession during his lifetime, Fernand Nault would have been 100 years old in 2020.

To highlight the 100th birth anniversary of the late Choreographer Emeritus Fernand Nault, Fonds chorégraphique Fernand Nault, is organizing and coordinating commemorative activities, from the 2020-2021 season and beyond.

A great opportunity to live the unique heritage he left us.

Fernand Nault

A remarkable contribution to Quebec's status

A recognized artist of the Quiet Revolution, Fernand Nault was very much involved in terms of creation and interpretation. The success from his creations have, among other things, enabled dance to take a "place" in Quebec culture in addition to contributing greatly to the financial health of several organizations. Creator, builder and important teacher, he was, until the end, a man of firsts, of very constructive initiatives for the Quebec and Canadian cultural milieu.

A great Quebecer, a great Canadian, a dance giant

Fernand Nault had the chance to learn from "Masters" who were writing the history of dance. For the Quebec of its time, he was the link between tradition and innovation. His Work, whose universality and contemporaneity remains, embodies a significant page in our socio-cultural history, the affirmation of our identity. His ballets tell, among other things, the societal breakup of a historical era.

Dance, a leading art, a complete art

Dance is an art of expression whose richness, evolution and value are rooted in our disciplinary history and our collective memory. The Work of Fernand Nault is without any doubt an important part of the Quebec and Canadian choreographic heritage.

Through heritage, building our identity, today and tomorrow

Learning from our past to carry ourselves towards our future

Heritage is a reference point, a source of information, a cohesion factor, sign of identity and shared memories. In Quebec, in Canada, whether in research, creation or repertoire, dance has reached a good maturity. Its rich and unique heritage makes it possible to transmit and recreate its activities, write stories and build identities.

Dance heritage is intertwined with individual and collective adventures which, in one way or another, influence current practices. It is a common knowledge which testifies of the history of the dancing community, its journey, its achievements, its aesthetic tendencies, its relationship to audiences.

Educate new generations

Contact with Heritage, whether living or documentary, promotes an interest in the discipline that it represents or of which it bears witness and nurtures the next generation. If we imagine that a young painter could be passionate about the work of a Jackson Pollock, a Guido Molinari, a Paul-Émile Borduas, an Ozias Leduc or a Frida Kahlo, it is obvious that future dancers and choreographers gain from knowing the artists who preceded them and the works they created. If the former have museums to nurture their imagination and perfect their culture in the visual arts, it must be recognized that the latter do not have that chance!

Developing a culture of restaging

Restaging productions are opportunities to meet new audiences, to rediscover those of the early hours, and above all, to contribute to the recognition and notoriety of a work. On a larger scale and in the longer term, they allow Quebec and Canadian dance to be known, its artists and craftsmen, its repertoire, its roots and its developments, its trajectory and its history.

Transmission

Heritage conservation finds its purpose in transmission. It benefits artists and their collaborators as much as the general public or researchers. Today, it is fundamental to constitute, conserve, enhance and transmit this heritage in order to contribute fully to the development of dance.
